TWO DENY
THEY SLEW
M'TAVISH

Thrilling interest was injected to-day into the trial of Mrs. Elizabeth Richmond of the Hotel Florence, Cambridge, who is fighting for her life under the charge of having killed Stewart MacTavish, when Assistant District Attorney Weir bluntly asked Timothy J. Clifford, a lodger at the Hotel:

"No, sir," replied Clifford loudly, "and thank God, nobody else."

The Assistant District Attorney asked this question because vague insinuations had been made by the defense that some other persons than the accused and one who was well acquainted at the Hotel Florence had killed Ma-Tavish. Clifford, in reply to questions by Mrs. Richmond's lawyers, had stated that he had no use for Mae Tavish. John F. Drohan, a cook, under similar circumstances, also denied the killing.

John F. Drohan, the cook, took the stand. He said he was hired a week ago

Q.—On Wednesday, July 21, what did Mrs. Richmond ask you to do? A.—She told me to go to a loan office in Boston and borrow some money on my salary. She told me to say that I got $14 a week and to get a loan of at least $25 and $50 if I could as she needed the money badly.

Q.—Did you see Mrs. Richmond again?

Finding of Body.

Q.—What did you do? A.—I told Clifford to help me take Mrs. Richmond back into her bedroom. Clifford said to me: "John, you come with me." He took a bunch of keys from his pocket, opened the door of Mrs. Richmond's room. There

Assistant District Attorney Weir asked the question of Trohan.

Q—Did you ever have any trouble with MacTavish? A—No, sir.

Q—Did you ever tell Clifford that you would put a bullet into him? A—No, sir.

Q—Did you go into the bedroom occupied by MacTavish any time Wednesday, Thursday or Friday until the body was found? A—No.

Q—Did you, Albi Stewart? MacTavish? A—No, sir, I did not.

John J. O'Brien of Towell, one of the jurors, was taken ill on account of the jurors' long session. Court was adjourned at 12:30, and a dentist came to the jurors' room. There in the presence of the jurors and two court officers the

TOMORROW, TO GREET FRIENDS

Mrs. Julia Ward Howe, known as the "Queen of American Women," celebrated her ninety-first birthday to-morrow. The event, as for many years past, is looked upon as almost a national event, and a lady who has received many congratulations, flowers, messages, letters, telegrams and tokens. In fact, the entire week has been a birthday week, with the luncheon in her honor at the Hotel Somerset, and the New England Women's Club as the leading feature.

George W. Coleman, the wrecker of the National City Bank of Cambridge, related on the witness stand in the Circuit Court to-day the remarkable story of how he was induced, he declared, by "Big Bill" Kellher and his friend, Jack Leonard, to steal money from the bank and hand it over to them to play a fake faro game in New York and Buffalo, and to keep on stealing until he "had taken about all there was in the bank."

Coleman Swears He Warned Keliher.

Still Coleman declares Keliher and Jack Leonard urged him to get more. Coleman swore that he told Keliher early in December that he had been taking the bank's money, that the bank examiner was about due and that he couldn't help being caught. The bank examiner examined the bank and did not find anything wrong.

"Keifer asked me if I couldn't get a little more," Coleman testified. "I told him that I had taken about all here was in the bank and that I had taken about all there was in the bank and that I couldn't get any more."

"Exposure Was Sure to Come."

withing cause of the bank examiners," while he told Keither he "could get a little more, but not much." Coleman got some more, went to New York with Keither, gave Keither the money, and the witness testified, and Keither lost it all before.

"Couldn't Afford to Squel."

Coleman said it could not get any more, and Keither asked him if he was going to "squel" if he run caught.

Speaking in the third person, the Governor to-day said:

Then Coleman testified he had not talked with Leonard and Reiller that he had reached the office of Leonard and Reiller and that he would have to stay for jail. Coleman suggested they get him some money and then he would go to jail. Coleman said he had to go to jail but they would look out for him while he was there.

It was brought out through testimony of Coleman that he, Jack Leonard and Kellie, went to Buffalo last Summer when Coleman was in New York, and that Coleman gave Kellie $2500 to buy farm property in Alabama. He told the juried Coleman

First Meeting With Girl.
Coleman testified that he met and dated her on the night of the girl's first election that she had $25,000 on Harrow.

Last with Kellher.
The first time Coleman went to New York with Kellher, which was about a year ago, Coleman said he had been taking her to the city and he had told Leonard about his thefts from her. Coleman said he played poker to his meeting with Leonard.

The result was the election of a Senate and Coleman said he was not in the city. Coleman was told by Leonard that he was going to the city and he was told by Leonard that he was going to the city.

No Change by Governor.

So the question becomes one simply of

On the day before Coleman was to be released, he ran away. Keiller got a man to go to the jail and get Coleman. He had his hotel bill at the Lency, and $100 in cash. Coleman was taken to the jail and promised to get some money from a friend named Stratton. Coleman then failed to get the money. He was identified in a lineup and charged with the murder of a woman.

Two days before Coleman ran away, he had seen Jack Leonard and Keiller in the street, near Hotel Madison, which was in the area of the murder. Coleman testified that Charles Garvey was the man who had been formerly patronized by New York City Mayor Jack Leonard in the 1930s. He said that Leonard had given him a picture of a woman who had been killed. Coleman went to New York City to find the woman. He found her in the street, near Hotel Madison, which was in the area of the murder. WINTHROP FIRE

A two-alarm fire early today destroyed a one-story wooden business block on Shirley street, Winthrop, and occupied by several firms. The blaze created considerable excitement in the neighborhood as the burned building was situated in the centre of a large residential district and several fine dwellings were threatened by the fire. The fire started in the cellar of the drug store of Robert MacLean from spontaneous combustion and rapidly spread through the building. The drug store was completely burned out. Others who suffered a loss were E. D. Sargent, Queen's, and Schwartz, Tappan and H. O. Thomas, real estate. The damage was estimated at $8,000.
